

About your
Wolf Trap
Teaching Artist...

WOLF TRAP | INSTITUTE FOR EARLY LEARNING THROUGH THE ARTS

Sue Trainor

Sue Trainor is a Wolf Trap Master Teaching Artist based in the Washington, DC, Virginia and Maryland Regional Programs. She is a musician and performing-songwriter with a gift for stirring-up enthusiasm and creativity. Sue has been a Wolf Trap Teaching Artist since 2003, bringing professional development residencies into preschool and kindergarten classrooms, providing professional development workshops for early childhood educators and training for other teaching artists.

Sue was named 2014 Artist of the Year by Young Audiences of Maryland for her arts-in-education work, which includes her role as lead teaching artist in the Maryland Wolf Trap region, Arts Integration Facilitator at a Title 1 school, and her residency programs in elementary, secondary, and special needs classrooms. Her most recent recording, "In Our Own Words," won the Wammie Award from the Washington Area Music Association for Best CD for Children. Sue received her bachelor's degree in anthropology from Lawrence University.

About your
Wolf Trap
Teaching Artist...

WOLF TRAP | INSTITUTE FOR EARLY LEARNING THROUGH THE ARTS

Sue Trainor

Sue Trainor ha sido artista experta de enseñanza del Wolf Trap Institute desde el 2003. Ella lleva residencias de desarrollo profesional a salones de clase preescolares, Kindergarten y de necesidades especiales, y ofrece seminarios de desarrollo profesional para educadores de infantes y entrenamiento para otros artistas educadores. Sue fue premiada como “Best New Artist for Young Children” (Mejor Artista Nueva para Niños Pequeños) en el Children’s Music Web Awards en el 1999. Sue ha ganado el premio “Best Children’s Vocalist” (Mejor Cantante para Niños) del Washington Area Music Association dos veces, y ha sido nombrada “Songwriter of the Year” (Mejor Compositora del Año). Recibió su título de grado en antropología de Lawrence University.